Valley Vista yearbook wins awards

DYSART SCHOOLS — For the second year in a row, the Valley Vista High School Yearbook Staff, under the leadership of 2009 VVHS Yearbook Editor-in-Chief Natasha Gagarin and Adviser Robert Waller, were recently awarded a First Place rating in the American Scholastic Press Association’s (ASPA) Annual Review and Contest for scholastic yearbooks, magazines, and other publications. Additionally, the 2009 Valley Vista High School Yearbook was recognized for “Outstanding Use of Color” by the ASPA. In their review, representatives of the American Scholastic Press Association had this to say about Valley Vista’s student-produced Yearbook: “Congratulations on your very fine publication! Your staff has been successful in chronicling the past year which has changed the lives of your students. This Yearbook should remain on bookshelves and produce fond memories for all the seniors and underclassmen in your school!”

The American Scholastic Press Association, located in College Point, New York, serves over 2,000 public and private schools annually.
