After-school culinary arts class registration extended

DYSART SCHOOLS — Building upon the popularity of the high school culinary arts program, the Dysart School District is set to expand the program next school year by offering after-school classes. High school students throughout the Dysart School District will be able to take culinary arts classes at Valley Vista High School from 3:00 – 5:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday.

The additional culinary arts classes will provide students with one high school credit each semester and will mirror the culinary arts classes provided during the school day. Registration for the after school program will be limited to 30 students. Students must enroll by March 23 to be considered for the program. Enrollment will be based upon the first 30 registrants. Students will be required to purchase a culinary arts uniform and transportation will not be provided for the program. Those interested in registering for the after school culinary arts classes need to contact their school counselor to fill out the registration form. For more information about the after school culinary arts program, please contact Thom Dickerson, Dysart's Director of Career and Technical Education, at 623.876.7991.
