FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE — MARCH 22, 2010

El Mirage School partners with ASU

DYSART SCHOOLS — When El Mirage School second, third and fourth grade students return to school for the start of the 2010-2011 school year, they will be a part of El Mirage's partnership with Arizona State University (ASU). El Mirage students and teachers will be a part of an innovative teacher development program that includes mentoring for student teachers as well as teachers across the district. An onsite ASU faculty member will provide training and other support to the teachers as well as the student teachers. Teachers will have opportunities to participate in seminars and workshops provided by experts in the field of education. Students will benefit by having expert teachers with the most up-to-date research based training in their classrooms. The ASU partnership comes at no cost to the district. Dysart joins the Mesa and Scottsdale School Districts in partnership with ASU. For information about the partnership at El Mirage School, please contact Joel Davidson at 623.876.7200.
